

APA Citation Guide

6th ed. (REF BF 76.7 P83 2010)

The following are examples of frequently used forms of citation. For more explanation and further examples, see Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 6th ed. (in the library at REF BF 76.7 P83 2010). Keep up with what's new in APA Style at <http://www.apastyle.org/>

When you use another person's ideas in your paper, even if you put the author's ideas into your own words, you must cite (i.e. credit) the source. Citations in text are brief credits in the body of a paper.

References is a complete list at the end of a paper of all the sources cited within. Sources cited in the body of a paper must appear in the reference list and vice versa.

Formatting

- Double-spaced
- Serif typeface (e.g. Times New Roman), 12 pt.
- Use italics for the title of a book, journal, magazine, newspaper or video

Reference List

- Double-spaced
- Hanging indent (in Word 2007 use Paragraph > Special > Hanging)
- Alphabetized

Citations in Text

- Direct quotations: page or paragraph number is required
- Paraphrasing or referring to an idea contained in another work: page number is recommended

Citations in Text: Multiple Authors

One to two authors: (Author1 & Author2, Year, p. xx)

three to five authors: (Author1, Author2, Author3, Author4, & Author5, Year, p. xx) first citation (Author1 et al., Year, p. xx) subsequent citations

six or more authors: (Author1 et al., Year, p. xx)
